Note from Kari Albers

I have been married to John for 17 ½ years. We started our marriage with humble means and lofty dreams. A year later, we bought our first home while John worked multiple different jobs to save money so we could start a family. We now have two wonderful children ages 14 and 8 and are looking forward to many more years together.

Many people have asked me about John these past 16 months. Let me tell you what you might not know about John. John gives selflessly to others every single day. He never asks for something in return nor does he seek recognition for these actions. John's faith would inspire anyone; and he truly believes in building treasurers in heaven. When his competitor became negative and falsely attacked John, many wanted to respond in kind. John, however, did not permit this to happen as he believes that we can and should be professional, moral and ethical in any circumstance. his ethical stance proved once again why he is the leader we need and want in the Georgia State Senate.

It still amazes me to watch John's energy and drive. As an executive and partner at Ronald Blue & Company, he loves the firm's mission and the people he works with. He serves on countless charitable boards and then races to the aid of others as a firefighter. John inspires people by his actions every day.

I wish everyone could see John the way our family does: playing with our boys in the yard, teaching them about scouts, school, faith, serving others, etc. This is the man I proudly say I love and respect. We need John and others like him in our State Senate to lead the way and provide a better future for our children and families.

Please join me and others on the 10th of August and cast your ballot for John to ensure that he is our next State Senator.

Sincerely,

Kari Albers
